"GREETINGS EARTHLINGS"

Long before television and movies made interplanetary travel popular, Marvin the Martian was touring the galaxy in his spaceship, The Martian Maggot. Directed by Chuck Jones, Marvin the Martian had his first close encounter with Bugs Bunny in "Haredevil Hare" in 1948 and interplanetary relations were never the same!

Accompanied by his faithful green dog, K-9, Marvin the Martian is the original "alien". His unique out-of-this-world appearance, large expressive eyes and his disintegrating ray gun belie his extraterrestrial origins. Marvin's bright intelligence and incredible tenacity convinces him that he is light years ahead of any earthlings he may encounter.

His unearthly superiority complex and flat sense of humor complement the zany antics of the other Looney Tunes characters and make him a strong personality. Although appearing in only six cartoons, Marvin the Martian has continuously grown in popularity because of his unique reflection of the contemporary high-tech environment and space age lifestyle. Marvin particularly appeals to young boys who like his unusual look and science fiction character as well as in the young adult upscale market that identifies with his futuristic attitudes.
